The Monthly Newsletter of the Evansville Bar Association

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By: Steve Hoar

The Old Vanderburgh County Courthouse celebrated its 125th anniversary this past month. Located on the site of a former turn-around basin of the Wabash & Erie Canal, the Old Courthouse's cornerstone was laid in 1888 and construction was completed in November 1890.

Although it has not served as a seat of justice for many years, the Old Courthouse continues to shine as a symbol of Evansville and its legal community. Because the history of Evansville law is intertwined with that of the Old Courthouse, this grand structure has a special place in the hearts of Evansville lawyers.

In 1892, soon after masons laid the last stone of the Old Courthouse, the Vanderburgh County Law Library was established. By 1910, the Library had a law book collection worth $6,000. At that time, a committee of local lawyers resolved to organize a bar association whose members would have the privilege of using the Library.

On April 20, 1911, Articles of Incorporation, a Constitution, and Bylaws were approved and the EBA was born. Its first President was Albert W. Funkhouser. Its mission was "to promote the study and development of law as a science; to elevate and maintain the dignity of the profession; to cultivate social intercourse among its members; and to increase its usefulness in promoting the due administration of justice."

Since 1911, the EBA and affiliate organizations have doggedly pursued this mission through efforts such as the establishment of the Legal Aid Society of Evansville, our partnership with the Volunteer Lawyer

Program of Southwest Indiana, and the philanthropy of the Evansville Bar Foundation.

Through the years, Evansville lawyers have distinguished themselves in many ways. We count former Chief Justice of Indiana Randall Shepard among our ranks. Our Association has also produced seven Presidents of the Indiana State Bar Association, beginning with Henry Walker in 1928 and the most recent being Paul Arnold in 1990.

Not all of our history has been honorable. In 1919, the EBA vigorously opposed the admission of an African-American lawyer, Ernest Tidrington. The first African-American detective in the Evansville Police Department, Tidrington eventually won admission to the bar after the EBA failed to appear at a hearing on Tidrington's character, but the EBA never admitted Tidrington as a member of the Association. Today, greater diversity is a foremost goal of our Association as we strive to achieve a membership that reflects the Evansville community.

Through the highs and lows, a rich tapestry of our Association's history has been woven. That history is on display in the EBA's Legal History Center in the Old Courthouse. Creation of the Legal History Center was part of the Randall T. Shepard Courtroom renovation project undertaken by the EBA as part of our 100th anniversary celebration in 2011.

The Legal History Center is a treasure trove of information stretching back to the earliest days of Evansville's founding. You can view a photograph of the 1910 lawyers' baseball team that beat the doctors' team by a score of 16 to 8. You can learn how, during World War II, the EBA helped its members cope with tire and gas rationing by coordinating travel to adjoining counties. And, partaking of the Legal History Center's best feature, you can view videos of senior EBA members recounting stories of the practice of law from days gone by.

Many of us walk right by the Legal History Center on our way to EBA events like Law Day and memorial services. The next time you find yourself in the Old Courthouse, stop by the Legal History Center to connect with generations past and learn more about the foundation upon which our legal community is built.

News From the Volunteer Lawyer Program

By Judge Greg Smith and Magistrate Sheila Corcoran

GET YOUR PRO BONO ON!!!

It's that time of year. Beverly and Scott need everyone to turn in their Closing Reports, if they have had a case and it is done. Even if the client never contacted your office – please turn in a closing report! Also, if you have done self – directed pro bono during the year, turn in that information. VLP has simple forms to help you do that and will provide them to you. Beverly says she has sent several out during the last couple months but has yet to receive any back. If you have taken a court appointment case and did so knowing that you would be paid 50% or less of your regular hourly rate – that's pro bono. Keep track of and turn those hours in.

Here's the catch – the cut off for turning in pro bono hours to VLP for 2015 is December 30th.

Also, in the Summation is the sign up sheet for talk to a lawyer clinics for 2016. Please decide what dates you would like to participate and send those in.

A big thank you to everyone who helps make the Volunteer Lawyer Program so successful. In so doing, you are helping your communities throughout southwestern Indiana. There is so much gratitude for all of you who help in every way that you do. May 2016 even be brighter and better for everyone!

TECHNOLOGY TIP OF THE MONTH

Provided by: Neil Chapman

Lunch? Have your robot email my robot

Her name is Amy Ingram, or just "Amy" to her friends.

Amy is an Artificially-Intelligent ("AI") Personal Assistant ("PA") that schedules meetings. Because you haven't arrived unless you have a PA. What, don't have one? Then fake-it-until-you-make-it, with Amy.

It's simple to hire Amy. Just type "x.ai" into your browser's URL bar. Then enter your email into the box that pops up, and link your work calendar.

Then, whenever you email someone to schedule a meeting, just cc Amy "amy@x.ai," and she takes over. She checks your calendar and suggests to you and your contact where and when to meet. She is so charmingly human, there are anecdotes of lovelorn executives attempting to send her flowers and whiskey. Yeah, I'm thinking I saw this movie also, and it didn't end so well for the humans.
